LEON WILDES

IMMIGRATION LAW

Leon Wildes is the founder and senior partner of Wildes & Weinberg, America's premier immigration law firm. Best known for his successful representation of John Lennon and Yoko Ono in deportation proceedings, he served as National President of the Association of Immigration and Nationality Lawyers, which awarded him its coveted Edith Lowenstein Award for Excellence in Advancing the Practice of Immigration Law. He has published and lectured widely and for the past 30 years has taught immigration law as Adjunct Professor of Law at the Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law. In recognition of his teaching ability, The American Immigration Lawyers Association conferred upon him the Elmer Fried Excellence in Teaching Award.

Founded in 1960 as a full service immigration firm, Wildes & Weinberg is both a leading provider of business immigration services and compliance to its distinguished corporate clientele and a dedicated representative of individuals in need of immigration services and advice.
